

2006 Fifa World Cup

Your Search Ends Here. We Found It! 2006 Fifa World Cup
eWoss.co.uk

World Cup Tickets

World Cup Tickets. Local Germany offices. Order online today
gotickets.com/World-Cup

Watch Internet TV

Watch ad-free live TV, news, sports and high quality videos.
www.realplayerlive.com

Change to ads about:

World Cup Soccer
FIFA World Cup
Football World Cup
World Cup 2006

Wicked Lasers 125mW Pointers

Cut, burn, pop balloons, light matches with lasers

Best 10 Website Hosting

Reviews & Ratings of the Top Web Hosting Compa

Seeking Marriage?

Find The Love Of Your Life Today!

Your Ad Here

CATEGORIES

- Awards
- Broadband
- Camcorders
- CeBIT 2006
- CES 2006
- Computers
- DAB
- Digital Cameras
- Digital Set-top Boxes
- Gadgets
- Gaming
- HDTV
- Home Audio
- Home Cinema
- IFA News
- Interviews
- Mobile Phones
- MP3 Players
- PC Tips
- PDAs
- Personal Video Players
- Propellerhead Top Tip
- Reviews
- Robots
- Satellite TV
- Show News
- Tech Digest News
- TVs
- Video

Computer program predicts World Cup outcome

I did rather well picking the results of the last World Cup (helped by a large bet on Senegal beating France), but this year, things aren't going so well. Still, I was quietly confident on Argentina coming through for me as winners this year until I visited Who Ate All The Bratwurst.

They've discovered a computer program, put together by students at Sharjah's American University, which predicts the results of matches with an 83 per cent success rate. So working through it should give you an idea who will win this year's tournament.

And the winner is...well, you'll have to go over to Who Ate All The Bratwurst to find that out. But here's a clue - football isn't likely to be coming home.

June 13, 2006 in World Cup gadgets | Permalink | Comments \(0\)

FIFA and Yahoo! offer free World Cup highlights on the web

Good news for those of us potentially office-bound during the World Cup - Yahoo! and FIFA have announced that fans will have access to video highlights of games on FIFAworldcup.com - the first time World Cup highlights have officially been available for free on the web.

The site will feature World Cup action, including all the goals from the 64 tournament matches for free (no registration required), two minutes of professionally-produced video highlights available within the hour following the final whistle of each game (except Asia and Middle East, where a 24-hour delay is in place and in Germany, where a 48-hour delay is in place) plus on-demand, searchable highlights, so you can locate your favourite moments, such as goals scored by your team of choice.

Alternatively, Yahoo! and FIFA are also offering a mobile service for instant access to the latest news through a mobile phone browser. You can follow all the World Cup matches live with the downloadable MATCHCAST client application, which will feature minute-by-minute commentary, facts and trivia. You can also stay updated by subscribing to free SMS alerts, including goals, match scores and daily news updates.

So relax - work might not get in the way after all.

Find out more at FIFAworldcup.com

More World Cup:

FIFA World Cup 2006 for PDA

3 to offer free mobile highlights of all World Cup games

Tech Digest Shop UK

Tech Digest Shop US

Ads by Google

300mW Burning Lasers

Red, Green,
Blue Laser
Pointers Slash,
Light Matches,
Pop Balloons!

wickedlasers.com

Advertise on this site

RECENT POSTS

Virgin Mobile extends free kebab offer to
World Cup

Christina Aguilera
available first to
Orange customers

Sharp introduces new range of Aquos
HD-ready LCD TVs

SunBriteTV - HD-ready
TV outdoors

Snappy Face Recogniser
- access a PC with your face

LifeCam - Microsoft's
new webcam range