I've been using the US version of Skyfire for a while now but am happy to announce that finally Skyfire has officially launched their top-notch mobile browser for us Canadians! Now Canadians can watch live sports like NHL hockey, NBA basketball, or use their favorite music and video services just like on their home/work computers. Skyfire is the first mobile browser software for Windows

Mobile which can view Flash 2.0, AJAX, and Quicktime content as well as streaming video.

Skyfire, as I've said before, is my top pick for mobile browsing - it's free, it's intuitive, and best of all it looks and acts just like your home/work computer!

CMO Adam Sexton said:

Skyfire users love being able to browse media rich sites like MySpace, Facebook, YouTube, and ESPN. "Our users prove that with Skyfire, mobile web browsing is very similar to PC Web browsing. We are pleased to bring Skyfire to Canada so that users there can use their mobile phones to visit sites that take full advantage of everything Web 2.0 has to offer.

So head over to the Skyfire website and register your name and email address, download the software and get started now!
